

No One Will Bid For AAU Juniors

NEW YORK (AP) — The National AAU Junior Track and Field meet probably won't be held this year for the fourth straight time, Dan Ferris, AAU secretary-treasurer, said Monday.

The meet is available to anyone who wants to bid for it, but so far no bids have been received, he said. It has not been held since it was separated from the senior champions because no one has shown interest in staging it.

The junior competition is open to athletes who have not won an AAU senior title, an NCAA championship or a championship of a foreign country. Before the separation, many athletes entered both meets.

The senior championships this year will be held at Boulder, Colo., June 24-25.
